

This southern province of Luzon is home to several hot spring resorts, ice-cold mountain pools and Mt. Makiling, a favorite among amateur and expert climbers. Most of Laguna's towns are home to private and public resorts and rest houses complete with swimming pools that contain water fresh from the hot springs and complete facilities.

Visitors who have been to Pagsanjan are often awed by the stark natural beauty of the Pagsanjan River and its spectacular falls. Located roughly 100 kilometers from Manila, Pagsanjan is on the southeast side of Laguna de Bay, the largest freshwater lake in Southeast Asia. It is famous for "shooting the rapids", one of the best-loved activities for visitors in the Manila area. Tourists are treated to a thrilling river ride between the picturesque canyon walls and through the rapids at breathtaking speed to the falls.

Innumerable hot springs abound in the province, including the famous Hidden Valley Springs which is located in a secluded part of Alaminos town. A trip to Dalitiwan River, located in Botocan, Majayjay, is an exciting adventure because the terrain is rugged, as mountain lands go, and the cool water or river gushes through the rocks and boulders along the watercourse in sweeping currents. The mystical Mt. Makiling in Los Baños is an inactive volcano, rising to about 1,109 meters above sea level. It is indeed endowed with nature's beauty, making it ideal for all types of nature tripping, from trekking to bird and butterfly watching and even camping.

Owing to its nearness to Manila, Laguna is presently becoming the center of economic activity in the Southern Tagalog Region and the CALABARZON area. Business in the area is bustling as shown by the presence of several industrial estates designed for handling large scale firms engaged in textile manufacturing, electronics, food processing, industrial machines, and car assembly.
